

Ready to execute your strategy?

Getting an organization to agree upon a strategic initiative is difficult. But executing the solution can be equally daunting.

Perhaps your organization has been tasked with implementing new technology, a merger/acquisition, a divestiture, a regulatory directive or other major initiative. The implementation might be cross-functional, involve multiple integrators, or be transformative. Perhaps the project is high profile or you're addressing a difficult or political internal culture. Or maybe your implementation has faced previous failures.

“ Peritius consultants can help. We apply a practical approach to implementing complex strategic initiatives. ”

We believe the secret to successful strategy execution is to focus on the goals of the strategy. So before we begin the delivery process, we ask questions. What are you trying to accomplish? What problems do you want to solve? And, as important, how will you know when your strategic goals have been achieved? Your answers to these questions drive our implementation approach.

Focus on outcomes

Peritius defines its approach to project execution as Outcome Management. That's because we are laser-focused on delivering the desired outcomes of your organization's strategic initiative.

We often use metrics to guide and assess implementation. We know when a project is successful because outcomes have been achieved. Metrics have been verified. Adoption has been optimized.

Budget wisely

We want you to use your budget wisely. So we work with you to prioritize the desired outcomes of your strategic initiative. Then we align the execution plan and project resources with your prioritized goals.

We staff engagements based on a simple philosophy: go lean. Most projects are staffed with a single Peritius resource who partners with Peritius' Quality Manager to leverage your in-house staff and integrators.

Adopt and sustain

We know that early communication with stakeholders leads to adoption. And adoption leads to organization sustainability. We ensure your organization is aware of upcoming change, ready for change and capable of sustaining change.

We are consensus builders. Our seasoned project leaders — chosen for their effective soft skills — tear down barriers associated with complex, cross-functional and global projects.
